

Consideration

You can also say that in a few words:

It is just a loving reminder that we start with ourselves and look inward to see where we ourselves can improve and change our behavior. And hopefully that rubs off on those around us who may not be as considerate in their behavior.

Motorhome tourists can achieve goodwill by complying with a set of ethical guidelines, which essentially only concern that we behave in a way that we show consideration for others and do not necessarily demand our rights.

Emptying etc.

Only empty waste water and toilets where there are facilities for this. Never flush the toilet in toilet bowls. Emptying facilities and the possibility of fresh water are available at many rest areas on the motorways. If the bin is full, you take your rubbish with you. Don't put it aside just because something might already be there.

Thank you for leading by example.

Apps and Free Camping

---

There are countless websites and apps that tell you where you can spend the night. The vast majority are serious apps that only have slots that have been created with care. However, there are apps where everyone can enter places that they think are good, but that they have not informed themselves about the legality and morality of spending the night there. This is where conflict can arise with municipalities and landowners. Several municipalities are dissatisfied with the motorhomes parking for the night, where it is inappropriate and where both municipalities and landowners have not been asked whether it is ethically correct to park in that particular place.

Precisely for this reason, you must always form an overview of the place you have driven into:

- * Are there signs with restrictions or prohibitions?
- * Are you alone at the site?
- * How far is it to the nearest residence, or other building that may have an opinion on your accommodation? If in doubt, ask permission to park there for a night.
- * How is the site in relation to public paths, public areas and places where people move?

The purpose of the AutoCamperRådet is to promote motorhome tourism in Denmark.

Overnight stay

ACR's five types of seats that almost always have space:

- * More than 100 harbors and marinas where there are facilities that can be used by motorhomes.
- * More than 360 farm pitches, where there are up to 3 pitches and where there are also facilities in several places.
- * Gradually, there are more campsites that have set up motorhome pitches both outside and inside the boom at advantageous prices and conditions.
- * Several microbreweries and farm shops have opened up overnight accommodation when purchasing services.
- * Motorhome pitches with or without facilities.

Always follow the site's instructions.

PARKING

If you follow the guidelines below, you park. There may be places with more relaxed rules. For example parking lots and rest areas.

If you want to spend the night outside the pitches in the five pitch types, where there is almost always room, the AutoCamper Council encourages you to comply with these simple rules:

- * Do not disturb the surroundings and do not disturb the view of the permanent residents.
- * Do not park on private property without permission.
- * Park only where it is legal and where not is signposted prohibiting motorhomes.

Open windows are not permitted if they exceed the marked parking area.

You can sit at tables outside the carriage during the day. All outdoor equipment must be gone before sunset.

→ The carriage must stay within the marking of the parking stall.

Always follow the campsite's instructions.

CAMPING

If you want to use any of the options below, it must always be done on a campsite and motorhome pitch.

If you consider that staying outdoors may take up space or disturb others who park on the site, you should refrain from using chairs and tables.

Discharge of all types of liquids, gray and black water, must take place at discharge facilities.

→ Camping always takes place on a camping and motorhome site.
